Farmer, Kenneth W., was born on July 8, 1937 in Hickman, Tennessee (Smith County). I attended elementary school there, and graduated from Gordonsville High School, Gordonsville, Tennessee in 1955.

I joined the United States Army on my 18th birthday in 1955, and was sent to Camp Chaffee, Arkansas for basic training. After basic training, I was sent to Fort Devens, Massachusetts where I graduated from Morse Code Interceptor School on April 6, 1955. I was then sent to Japan for further processing. I was assigned to the 326th Comm/Recon Company in Kyoto, Japan, and later assigned to the 14th USASA Field Station on Brady Air Force Base for three years.

I returned to the USA in May 1959 and was sent to Fort Sheridan, Illinois, where I reenlisted and was sent to Fort Devens, Massachusetts. I was later assigned to the 317th USASA Battalion at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. I went to Airborne School in 1961 and was sent to the 13thRRU, 5th Special Forces. I went to Ranger School in February 1963 and graduated in April 1963. Reassigned to Okinawa, I was allowed to return home due to a family issue. Subsequently, I was reassigned to my previous unit at Fort Bragg.

In September 1963, I was sent to the 400th SOD 1st Special Forces where I spent six months. Due to my son being sick, I was posted to Co. B of the 313th USASA Bn at Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

On May 1, 1964 I deployed to the Dominican Republic in support of the 82nd Airborne, and returned to Fort Campbell in June awaiting my reenlistment in July. We learned that we were being assigned to the 1st Infantry Division for deployment to Vietnam in September 1965. Again, I was assigned to Fort Bragg. Later I was assigned to the 358th ASA Co. 265th ASA Co., which was formed in support of the 101st Airborne Div.

I deployed to Vietnam in December 1967 and returned to Fort Bragg after a year in Vietnam. In 1970 I was sent back to Vietnam and was assigned to the 403rd RRSOD of the 5th Special Forces. I was a Team Leader in Ban Me Thuot, and sent to Kontum, Vietnam. I returned to the USA on December 23, 1970, and was assigned to the 313rd UASA until 1973. I was then sent to Thailand on June 19, 1973, and stationed with the 7th RR Field Station until June 1974. I then proceeded to Fort Devens where I was assigned to the 401st RRSOD. Ultimately, I returned to Fort Campbell with the 101st and was assigned to the 1st Brigade until I retired on July 31, 1975. I have since lived in Clarksville, Tennessee.

WAGERS, Michael R., Major, USA, Ret., entered the US Army on April 7, 1967, in Salt Lake City, Utah. I had been dismissed from a Military Boarding School in Illinois in February of that same year. I went back to public school but only needing one credit to graduate and afraid I would miss the war in Vietnam, I decided to enlist. I remember asking the recruiter how much I would get paid, and he replied $87.00 a month. Finding this even less than what I was making pumping gas after school, I asked him if there was not something I could do to make more. I told him of my brother in the Navy who got Sea Pay when aboard ship. He told me that if I volunteered to jump out of airplanes, they would pay me an additional $50 a month. Sounded good to me, so I signed up to be an Airborne Infantryman on a three-year enlistment.

Basic Training was at Fort Bliss, Texas, and for some reason along with one other guy, we ended up in a company made up of all National Guard and Enlisted Reserves, and we were the youngest guys in the company. Having already been in a military environment for the last three years, there was very little in Basic Training that I had not already done and mastered. I left Basic Training after 8 weeks headed for Fort Gordon, Georgia, and Airborne Infantry AIT.

At Fort Gordon it was a pretty basic Infantry AIT with the addition of some basic Airborne training (jump commands, PLFs and a lot of PT). Upon graduation we were all loaded on buses and shipped to Fort Benning and the 42nd Airborne Training Company, into old WWII wooden barracks, the same design and build as those at Fort Gordon. Jump School was as it had always been a lot of yelling, PT, running and endless PLFs. At the end of our second week everyone received his orders for Vietnam, and I was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division. At the end of the week after we graduated at another formation the 1SG called out a bunch of names and told us we were not going to Vietnam, but rather we were being drafted into a new program named the Non-Commissioned Officers Candidate Course (NCOC). After bitching and complaining how we all wanted to get to Vietnam, the 1SG explained to us what would happen to us. We would all be promoted to Corporal E4s (totally skipping E3) and then if we graduated in three months, we would then be promoted to Sgt. E5 and then sent to Vietnam. Well that made it all sound better.

NCOC ended up being just like Infantry Officer Candidate School without a lot of the harassment and with total focus on small unit tactics, land navigation and a lot of leadership instruction as well as extra weapons training, communications, and more PT. In hindsight it was pretty good training, I remember thinking after I got to Vietnam what it would have been like if I had not had that training. Graduation came and another surprise was slapped on us. We were to go back to Ft. Gordon and act as Assistant Drill Sergeants at, yeah Airborne Infantry AIT. This was another 9-10 weeks of OJT leading trainees (whom we had been several months earlier) through Infantry AIT. Another surprise awaited us on the completion of OJT. The day prior to our cycle graduating the Company Commander and the 1SG called me in and notified me that the Army in its infinite wisdom had authorized one out of every 12 NCOC graduates to be promoted to E6 upon completion of OJT and I was selected by the Battalion CSM and the cadre of the company and promoted to Staff Sergeant E6. I was right at one year in the Army, 19 years old as a Staff Sergeant Regular Army finally on my way to Vietnam.

When I arrived in Vietnam, (right at one year in service), I was assigned to the 173rd Airborne Brigade, C Company 4th BN 503rd Infantry. I got to the field quickly and relieved a Sergeant E5 who was the acting Platoon Sergeant. After getting settled in I realized that it was a 1st LT, 43 soldiers, mostly E3s and some E4s, and me. I served 20 months in the 173rd and returned to the states in December 1969. I had on the recommendation of my 1SG decided to reenlist while in Vietnam and reenlisted for Ft. Benning, Georgia.

At Ft. Benning I was assigned to the Ranger Department Patrolling Committee of the US Army Infantry Training Center, teaching OCS, NCOC, and IOBC techniques of patrolling and other combat skills. While in this assignment I was constantly going to various schools; CBR, 3rd Army NCO Academy, Jump Master, Pathfinder, Instructor Training Course and who can forget Ranger School. I was also given the opportunity to attend the Canadian Arctic Warfare Instructors Course. I spent three years in the Patrolling Committee and was then assigned as a PSG to C Company Rangers at Ft. Benning, one of the last three Separate Ranger Companies. After a year and now at 25 years old I was selected for below the zone promotion to Sergeant First Class and received orders for the new NCO Advanced Course, TDY enroute to Europe. While in the Advanced Course I learned of the formation of the 1st Ranger Bn. I immediately volunteered and upon graduation was assigned as the PSG 3rd Platoon, Charlie Company, 1st Ranger Bn. and to be at 25 the youngest PSG in the Battalion. After serving for 18 months in the 1st Bn. and in keeping with General Abrams' Charter, I was drafted into the Army Drill Sergeant Program.

After leaving the 1st RGR. Bn. I was sent on Drill Sergeant duty for three years, the last year of which was as The Drill Sergeant of the Year at TRADOC HQ. at Ft. Monroe, VA. During that time I applied for and received a Direct Commission to 1LT USAR to maintain a Dual Component Status. After Drill Sergeant duty I asked for another troop assignment and was assigned to the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii. I served as a PSG of a Scout Platoon and then 1SG of a Rifle Company in the 1st Bn. 27th Infantry. In late 1979 I applied for and received a discharge and an immediate call to active duty in my Reserve Rank as a 1st LT of Infantry and was assigned as an assistant S3 for three months and then Company Commander of C Co. 1st Bn. 21st Infantry. After having commanded for 18 months I was sent on to the Infantry Officers Advanced Course back once again to Ft. Benning. The advanced course was followed by 18 months of Boot Strap and going to college to finish my BS degree. This was followed by a second command of 51st Officer Candidate Company. At about the time I was finishing this command they activated the Ranger Regimental HQ and the 3rd Ranger Bn., and I was asked by the newly appointed Regimental Commander (Col. Wayne Downing) to leave OCS command and to join the Ranger Regimental HQ to form and set up the Ranger Indoctrination/Pre Ranger program for the Ranger Regiment. After another 18 months of commanding the RIP Detachment, it was discovered that I had some serious heart and lung problems, and I left the Ranger Regiment and was reassigned to the Infantry Test Board and the Airborne Test Platoon at Ft. Benning. This was my last assignment and I retired in April 1990 as a Major of Infantry with 23 years of active service.

Lifetime Member of the following:

American Legion China Post One in Exile, Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), Disabled American Veterans, National Association of the Purple Heart, US Army Ranger Association (USARA), Commander Emeritus of Ranger Base Minatra USARA, 75th Infantry Ranger Regiment Association, 2018 Inductee into the US Army Ranger Hall of Fame, 32 Degree Royal Arch Mason.
